

Primary Logo

Vertical format should be used across all print and digital collateral, presentations, signage, and all other layouts that can accommodate height and appropriate margins.

Minimum margins should about 3x the space between the logo mark and the word mark.

The word mark is comprised of the two brand fonts: Pathway is set in Fragment Glare and "Homes" is set in Acumin Pro Light."

Do not deviate from these fonts or spacing requirements.

Secondary Logo

Horizontal format should be used on smaller applications such as website, social media banners, physical banners, and all other layouts that can not accommodate the primary, horizontal formatted logo.

Minimum margins should about 3x the space between the logo mark and the word mark.

The entire word mark is set in Fragment Glare.

Do not deviate from these fonts or spacing requirements.

Logo Color

A/ On dark backgrounds, use one of two logo color variations: 1) Slate logo mark + slate word mark 2) White logo mark + white word mark.

B/ On light or white backgrounds, only use the logo mark set in Medium Teal.

These color combinations also apply to the secondary, horizontal logo variations.

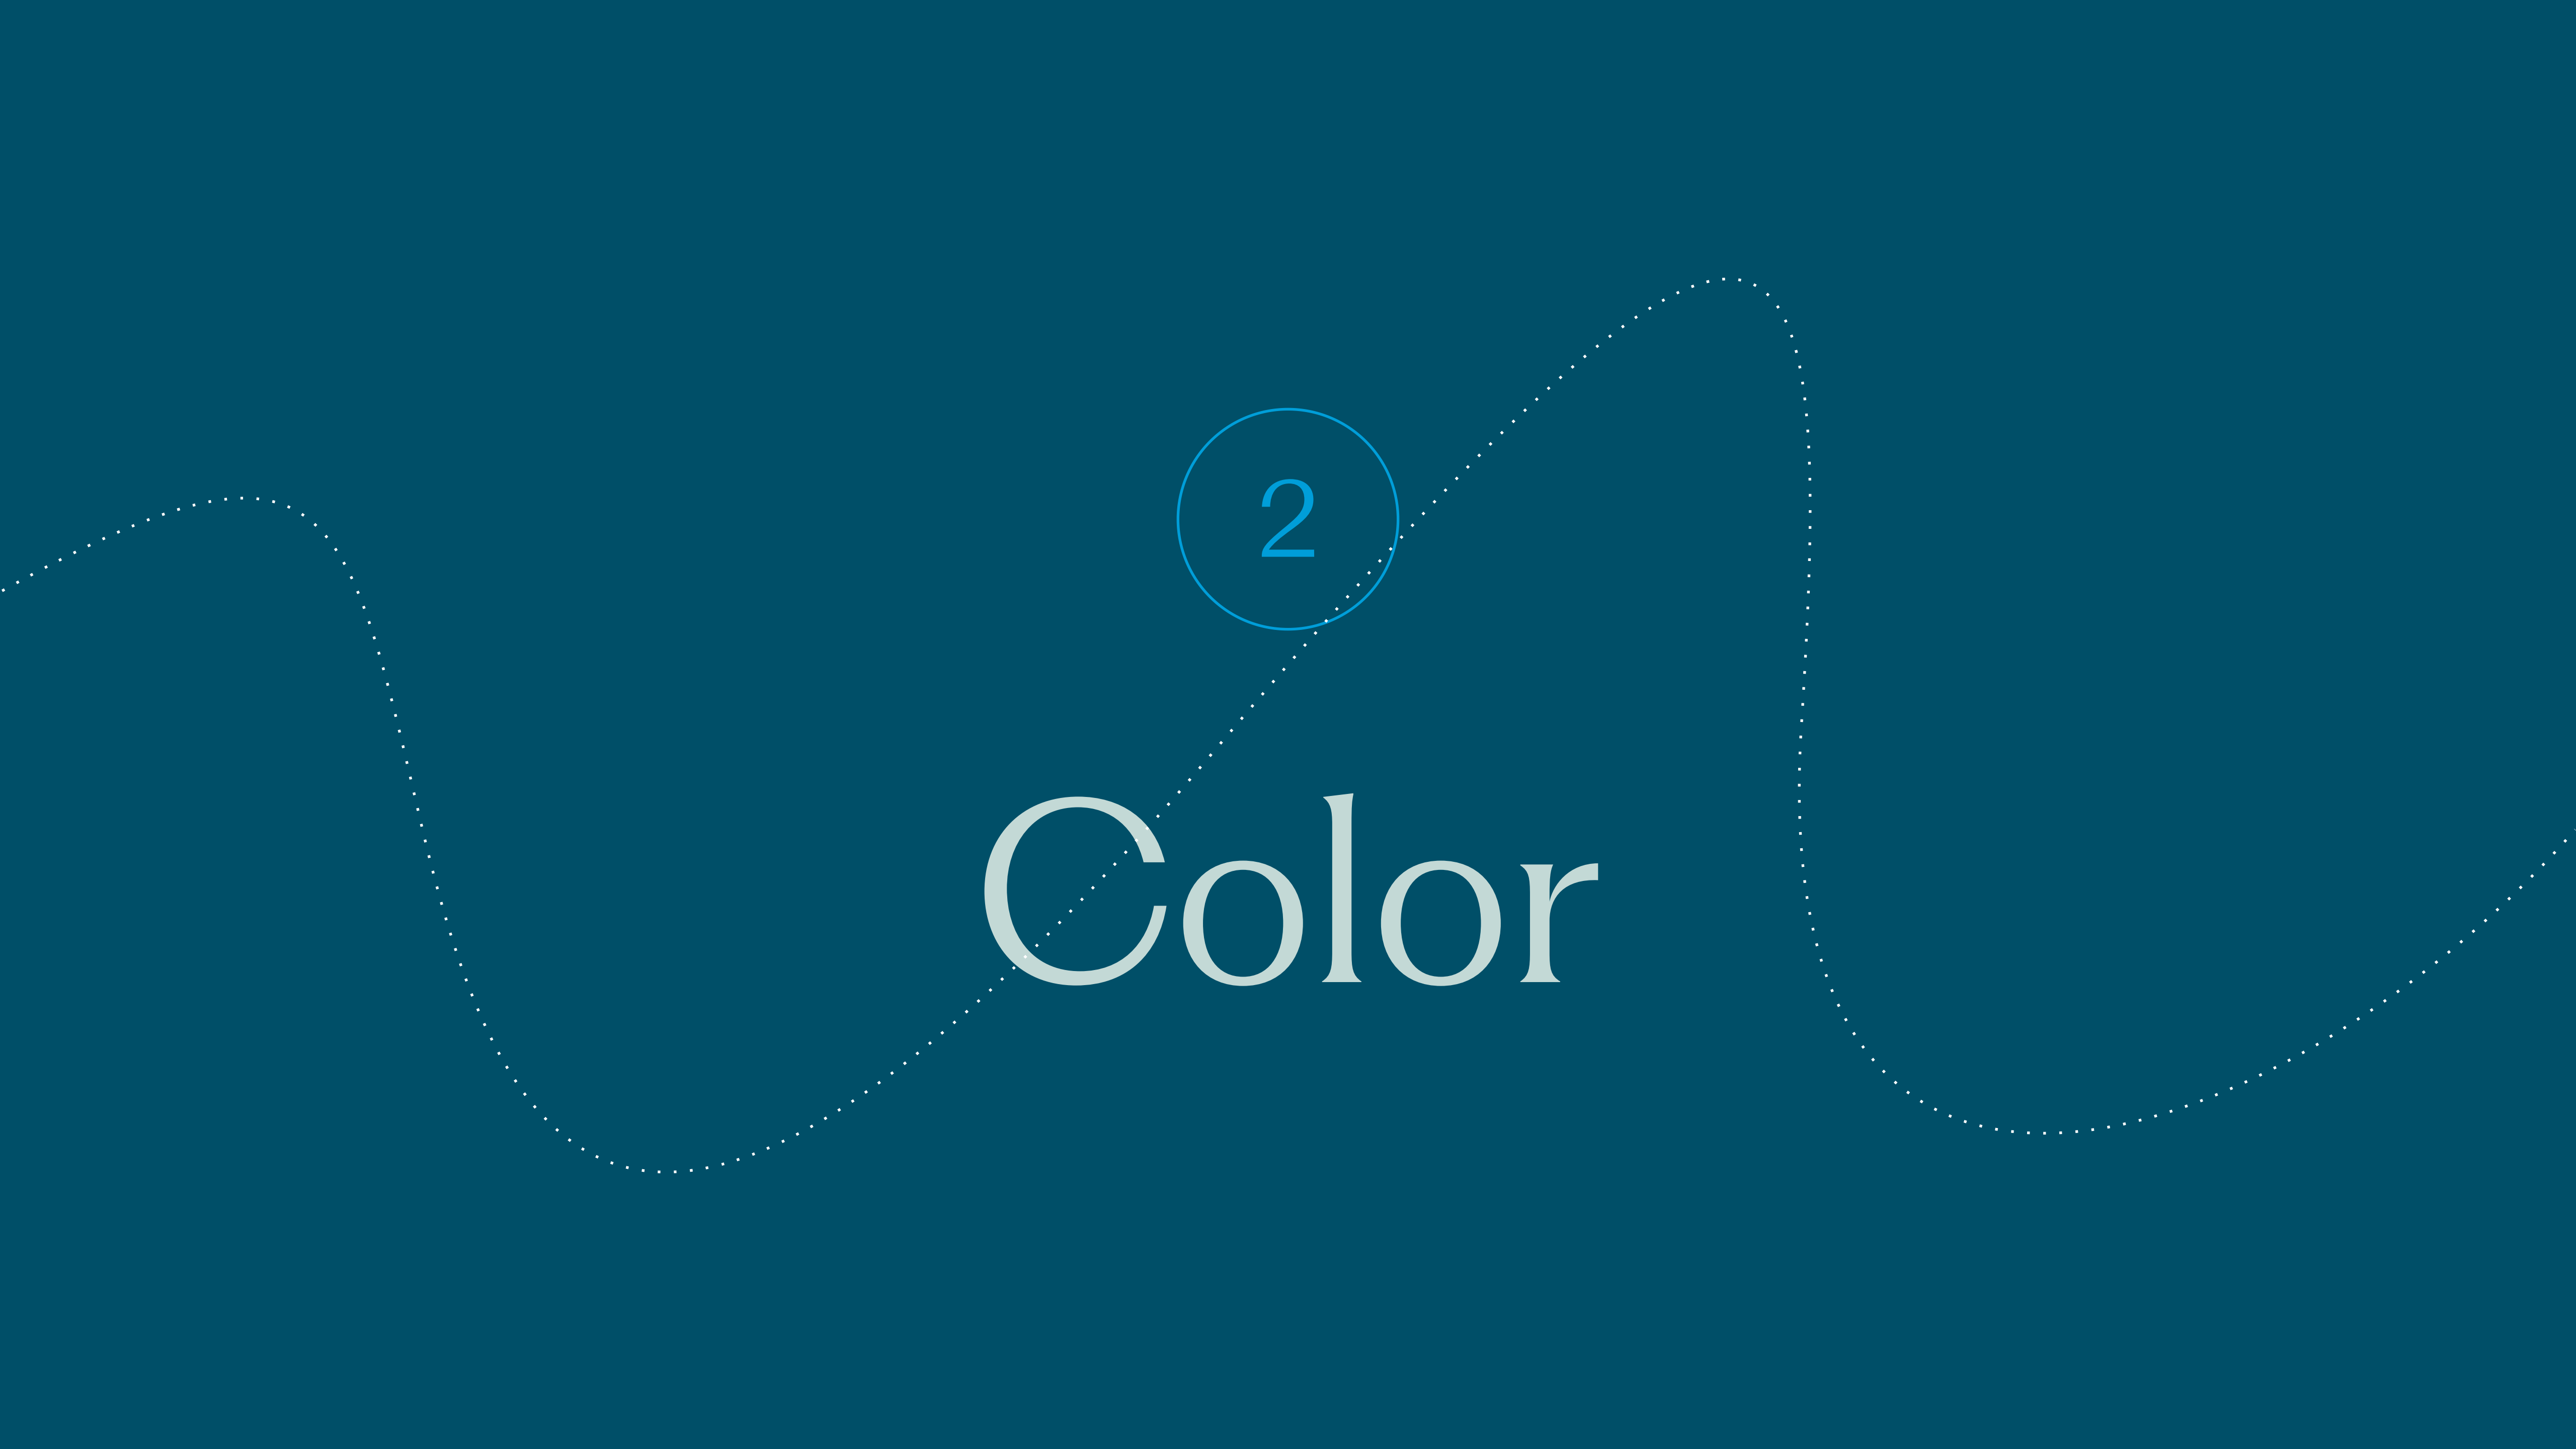

Logo Misuses

Avoid using any other colors for both the logo mark or the word mark.

Avoid gradient versions of the logo from the previous brand

Do not change the orientation, placement or scale of the logo mark and word mark.

Primary Palette

The primary palette consists of the core colors that are the most closely associated with the Pathway brand.

Dark Teal: Used sparingly as title card backgrounds and limited context on web and digital applications.

Medium Teal: Used extensively throughout the brand as background elements, all dark text, dotted line motifs, and throughout illustrations and graphics.

Pathway Blue: Used to highlight very important text, buttons, call to action, and accents in illustrations. Should be used sparingly to reserve for special moments. Never use as background color.

White: Used extensively throughout the brand as the primary background color and also for light text, dotted line motifs, and accents in illustrations and graphics.

PP Fragment Glare

Fragment Glare Light is the primary font of the Pathway brand identity. It serves as the word mark font which sets the tone for the brand voice across digital and collateral marketing.

It should also be utilized for headlines, taglines, and all other short and important text.

Within the PP Fragment font family, one should never use any weight other than Light nor any other variation other than Glare

It should never be used for paragraph or long form text, bylines, small data (such as phone numbers or addresses), and should be solely reserved for copy from the Pathway brand perspective.

Italics, while available, is not used in the brand identity. Avoid slanting or skewing the font. To add emphasis, change the color to Pathway Blue.

Aktiv Grotesk

The Aktiv Grotesk font family provides a clear and legible sans serif that works to provide contrast with PP Fragment Glare. It is devoid of brand voice and tone and is best used as a utility font.

Aktiv Grotesk Light should be used at large or medium sizes, for example long headlines or secondary taglines.

Aktiv Grotesk Regular should be used as paragraph text, small bullet points, data (such as phone numbers and addresses), and bylines.

Aktiv Grotesk Bold should be reserved for emphasis within paragraphs, page or section headers, or names in bylines.

Type Hierarchy

While there is wide flexibility in the type hierarchy options in the Pathway Brand, there are a few guidelines that will help retain consistency across digital and marketing collateral.

The examples to the left offer guidance to type scale and font pacing to achieve maximum legibility and contrast for the intended audience.

There are no set font size pairings and will vary depending on the scale and context of its application.

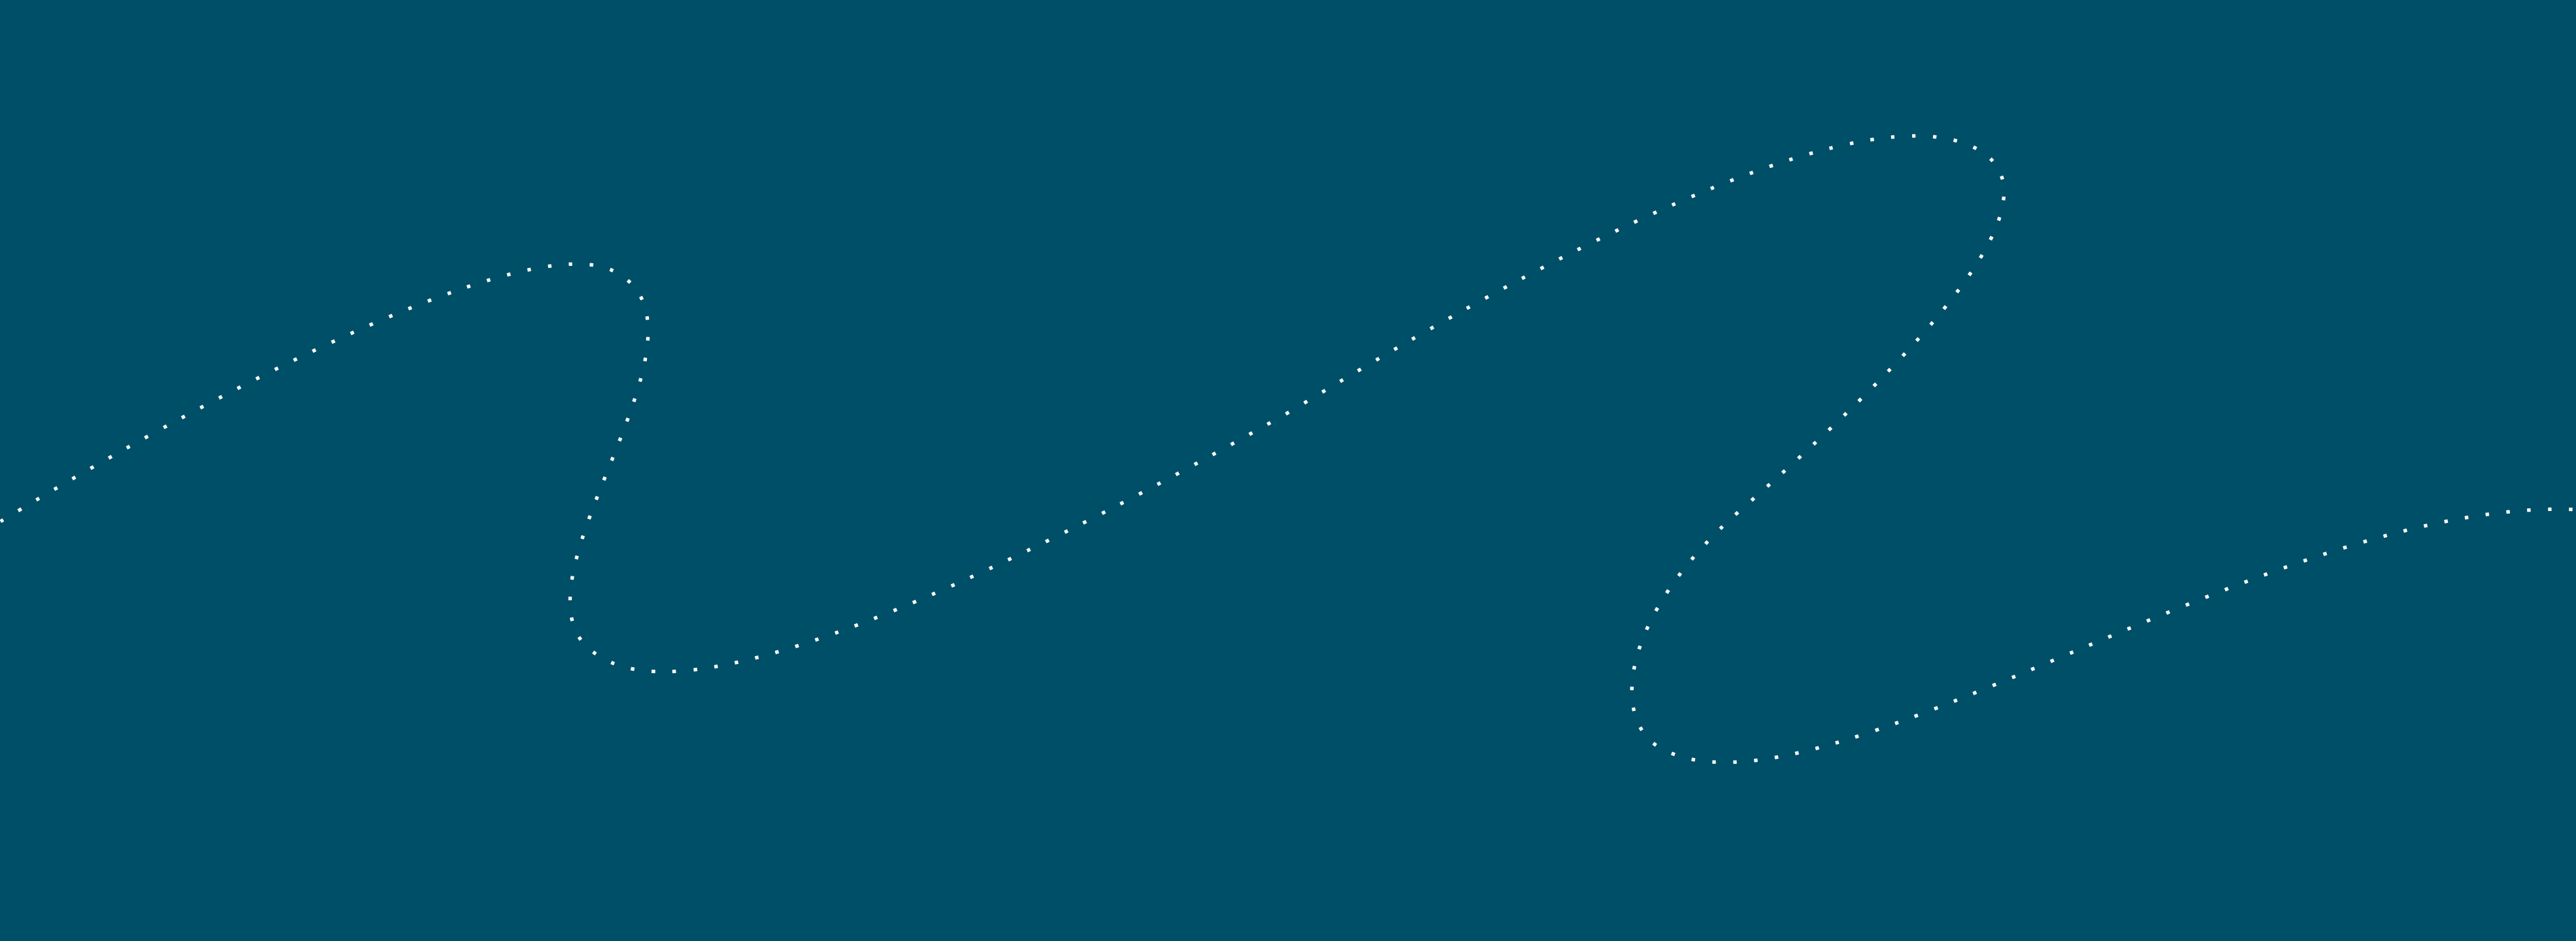

Text can be set on white, light secondary palette, or teal.

In some limited instances, white text can be set on photography.

Default layout of text should be left aligned. In rare circumstances, the text can be centered. Never 'justify' align text.

Graphic Styles

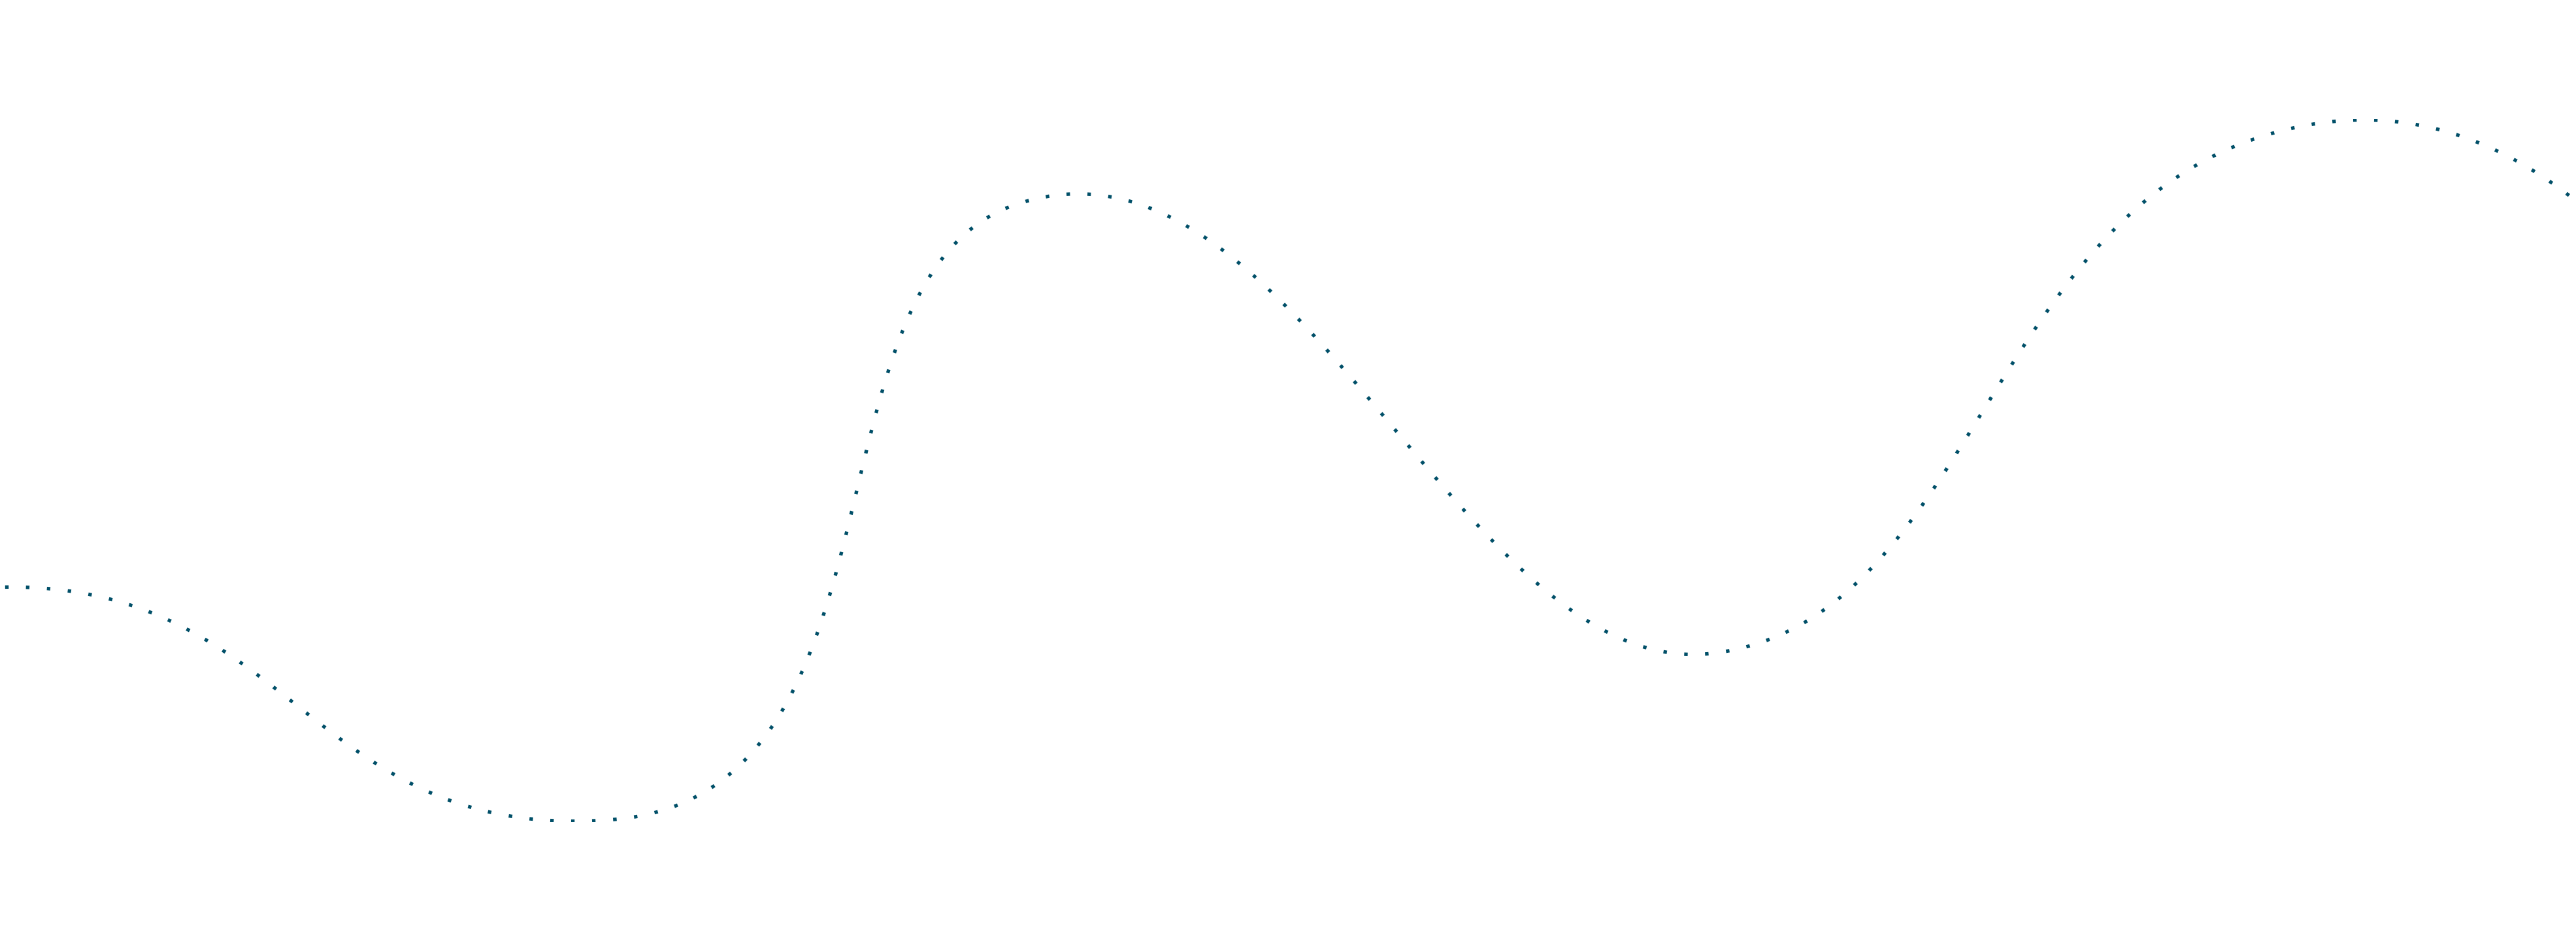

Dotted 'Journey' Lines

The Dotted Journey line is an integral part of the Pathway brand story. It serves a variety of purposes: 1) It creates a conceptual connection to the hummingbird logo mark with the rest of the brand identity. 2) It symbolizes the unique journey that the Pathway customer can take on their way to home ownership. 3) It's a subtle graphic device that can be used in animation or layout that activates the brand with personality.

Dotted lines can be in white on dark backgrounds or teal on white or light backgrounds.

Horizontal lines should span 100% of composition, starting and ending on the left and right sides. Never top and bottom. Vertical lines are used to connect content on vertical layouts such as flyers and long landing pages.

The dotted line is comprised of square (butt cap) and a 1:1:5 ratio (Size : Dash : Gap)

Shapes, Curves & Rounded Corners

Another distinctive feature of the Pathway brand is the use of curves and rounded corners. This gives the brand a friendly, personable, and trendy look.

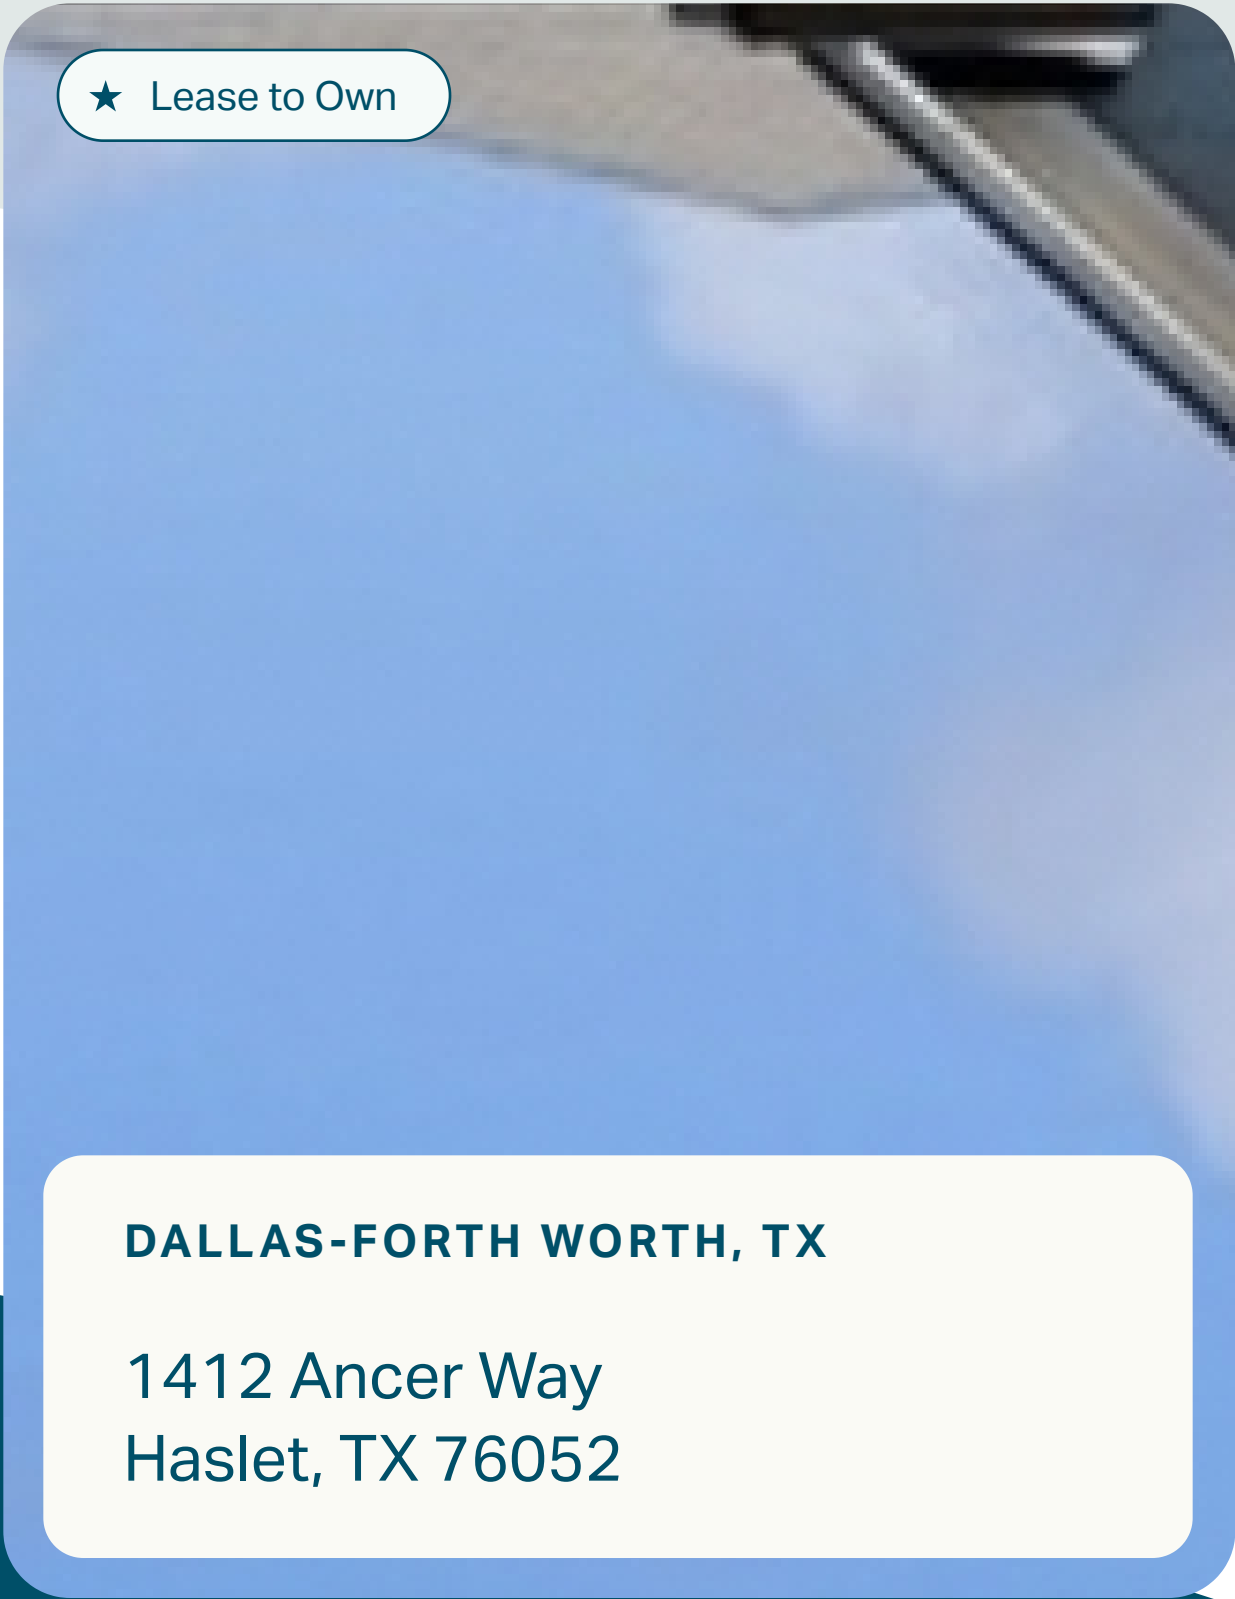

Curve background elements directly relate to the graphic style of the logo mark. They assist layouts in adding interest when switching between sections and content. Curve backgrounds can be any teal, white, or light palettes. Photographic elements may overlap curved elements.

All rectangular elements, including photography, should have rounded corners. On digital applications they should be kept at 25px. On print applications, avoid excessively large or small rounded corners.

Most shapes should have a border outline in medium teal. Border width should stay close to 1 px, but should increase depending on scale.

Here are examples of corners and background curves that break the brand identity guidelines.

-  Incorrect curve color and shape backgrounds
-  Excessive and unbalanced rounded corners.
-  Missing border on rectangular shape on white background.

Illustration Usage

Illustration assets can be deployed in certain contexts throughout the Pathway brand identity.

For general guidance, illustrations should be considered infographic and used in conjunction with copy or data to communicate a point.

The subject matter should be restricted to modern home furnishings and accessories. While pets and small animals can be illustrated, the brand does not support illustrated people or parts of people (hands, eyes etc.)

All human representations are completely off brand.

Illustration Style

The style is a blend of simple, yet bold geometric shapes paired with mono-weight line borders and graphics.

Style is defined as a mid century modern “upscale Ikea” approach to furnishings. In general, illustrations should feel sleek, sophisticated, yet attainable. Avoid overly expensive objects and styles and embrace a “starter home chic” warmth.

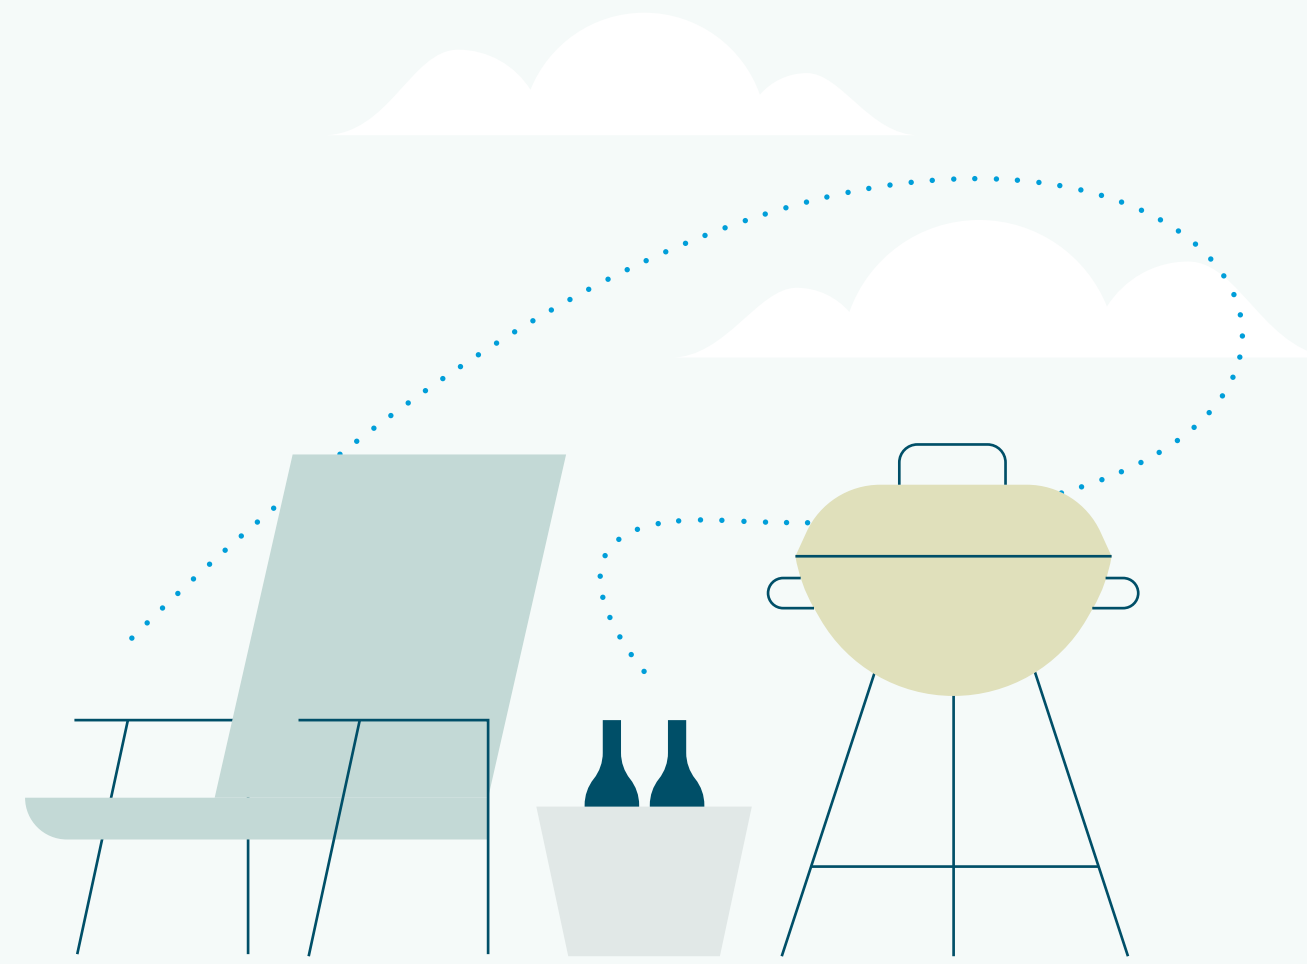

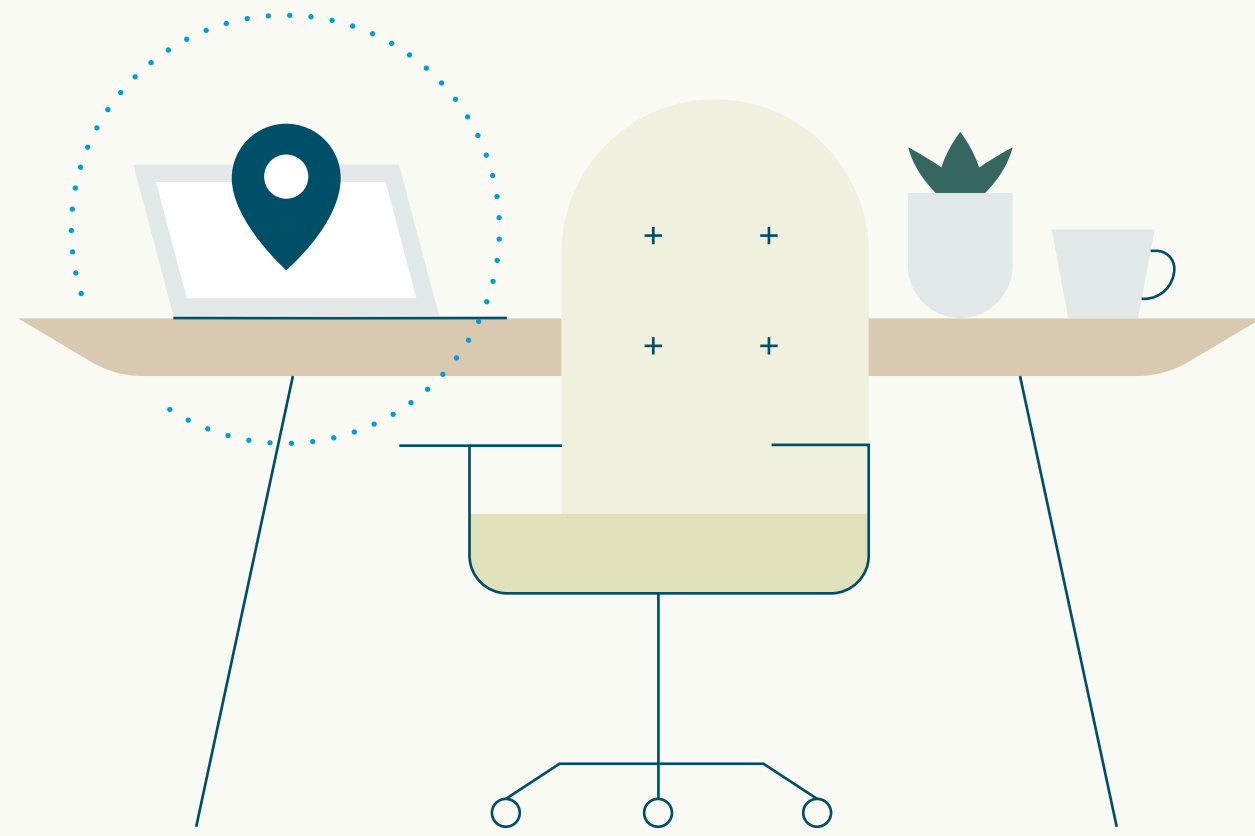

All hues and variations of the color palette may be used in the creation of illustrations.

The addition of infographic elements that depict data is acceptable when combined with contextual copy.

Overall, illustrations should be minimal, beautiful, aspirational, and rarely used to maintain their impact across marketing collateral.

Illustration Examples

Here are examples of illustrations in use across the Pathway brand.

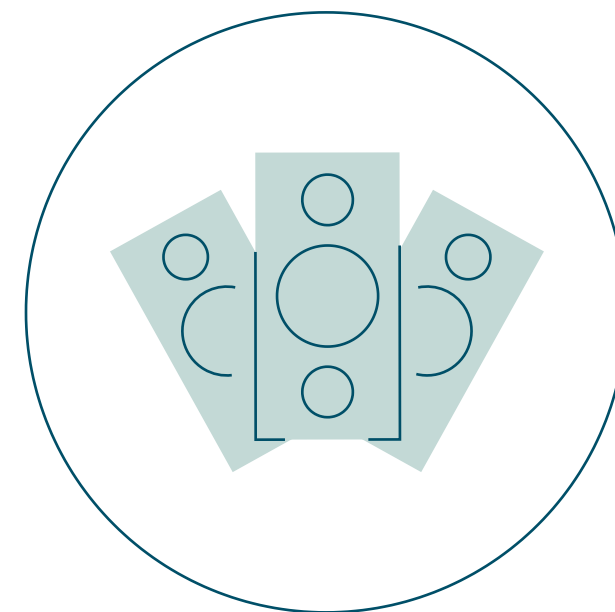

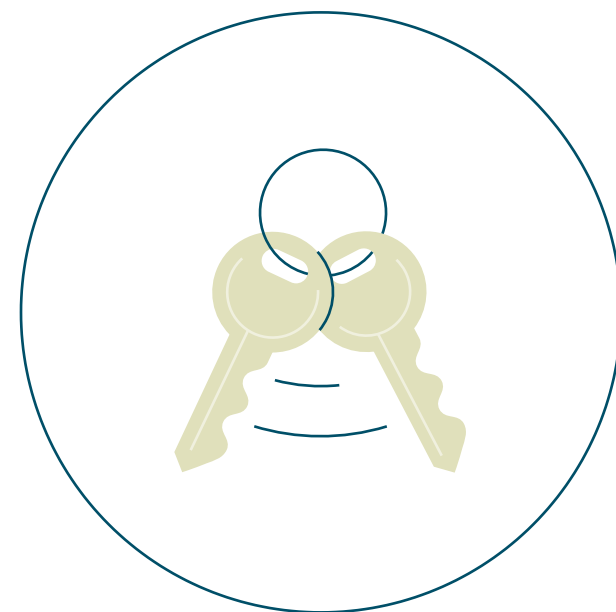

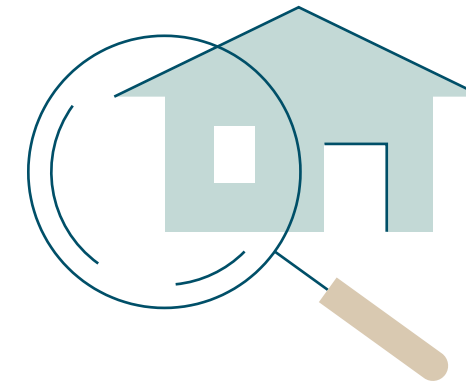

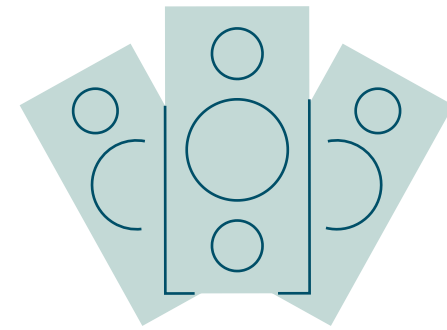

Iconography

Smaller icons and spot illustrations can also be utilized to great effect throughout the brand.

Use the same guidelines as the full illustrations.

Icons can float within open layouts or can be contained in a circle or rounded rectangle.

Brand Personality

The following characteristics will help guide you as criteria for measuring promotion, sponsorship, and marketing opportunities. Generally, every opportunity or program should reflect the core characteristic values listed here.

PROBLEM SOLVERS

When traveled alone, the road to homeownership feels pitted with obstacles. We've been there. We've found new ways around those obstacles—and the pride we take in solving problems is surpassed only by our enthusiasm for tackling any new ones that may be lurking around the next curve in the road.

BIG THINKERS

We have big dreams, for ourselves and for our customers, but they're not pipe dreams. We always aim high but our efforts are grounded in a pragmatic approach to problem-solving that ensures our vision for a future where anyone can own a home is always within reach.

ETERNAL OPTIMISTS

We don't see the sense in reaching for a goal if we don't believe in our hearts we can get there. Financial acumen, proven processes, and a little bit of luck is always good but we never underestimate the role deep-seated optimism plays in helping us deliver positive outcomes.

THE REAL DEAL

We understand that when something sounds as good as Pathway Homes, there's a temptation to look for the catch. You won't find one here. We are a genuine, proven alternative to the traditional (and broken) homebuying process, and we hate B.S. and high-pressure sales tactics just as much as you do.

GROUNDBREAKERS

We are in the business of creating new homeowners but we work in a culture that's constantly creating new ways to make that happen. Our daily operations are fueled by a spirit of inquiry and a fierce commitment to invention that results in finding new pathways to homeownership where others see roadblocks.

ALWAYS THERE

At Pathways, we don't believe in short-term relationships. All our product offerings provide our customers with the momentum they need to realize their homeownership dreams, but that momentum takes time—and we pride ourselves in being the reliable, trustworthy partner they can turn to every step of the way.

"PEOPLE" PEOPLE

Spoiler alert: You don't have to be intimidating to be the best at what you do. We invite all questions (even the ones our customers call "dumb") and delight in providing explanations that clarify rather than confuse. We like people and the best we know how to prove that affection is by helping them achieve their homeownership dreams.

AN OPEN BOOK

Home buying can be a complicated process and it's easy for customers to fall into the belief that all those real estate acronyms and paperwork are hiding something. That's why we endeavor to be transparent in all our interactions with our customers, from the products we offer to their progress toward a home.

Voice & Tone

Our voice is expressed in every word choice we make when we communicate with partners and customers.

ASPIRATIONAL but not UNREALISTIC

We think and dream big, and that enthusiastic optimism is hard to miss in the way we talk about our company and to our customers. We encourage others to join us in the quest to bring homeownership to all, but we never do it with starry-eyed declarations or false promises.

FORTHCOMING but not IN YOUR FACE

We don't take for granted our customers' trust in our products, our expertise, or our word. We earned it by never making false promises and always telling it as it is. We believe that candor and compassion are not mutually exclusive traits and we take pride in our ability to speak plainly and honestly without crossing the line into obnoxious.

SIMPLIFYING but not SIMPLISTIC

We hate confusing acronyms and "inside baseball" real estate lingo as much as our customers do and thus always endeavor to clearly communicate our message in a manner free of jargon or unintended obfuscation. This doesn't mean we oversimplify things to the point of superficiality but we take the extra time and effort to communicate oftentimes complex real estate topics in language that anyone can understand.

FRIENDLY but not UNPROFESSIONAL

Despite our cutting-edge technologies, products, and proven business processes, the homeownership game remains very much a people business—and we proudly call ourselves "people" people. We've never heard a dumb question and take delight in providing the right answers. Customers can be themselves with us but that doesn't mean we're ever anything but professionals with them.

KNOWLEDGEABLE but not a KNOW-IT-ALL

We know real estate. We know technology. And we know business. We're very, very good at all three, and it's that combined expertise and proven track record that sets us apart from so many of our competitors. But that's doesn't mean we haven't stopped learning. The real estate market is constantly changing and we'll never get tired of discovering new and better ways to help more people move into the home they've always dreamed of.

DISRUPTIVE but not DESTRUCTIVE

We are disruptors dedicated to bringing positive and long overdue change to the real estate industry—and the lives of our customers. We're talking profound and long-term disruption here, the kind that creates a ripple effect across the country by opening the doors to homeownership for thousands of families whom the traditional real estate process has left out in the cold.
